To whom it may concern,

As part of a previous life within a corporate event management role well over 10 years ago, I was looking to entertain an internal corporate group with something different. Knowing the group well, several of the standard acts such as Guest Speaker's would not work with them. Then in my travels I came across this magician with the working name of "Dan the Gambler".

As you may understand, your work peers can sometimes be the hardest markers but on this particular evening night "Dan" was the man, so much to the point he nearly won over some of the sceptics!

Since that time I have engaged "Dan" several times both personally for birthday parties where the roaming show to small groups works wonders, and professionally to groups large and small. Dan's ability to engage, entertain and mingle works perfectly, especially when looking for an icebreaker. More recently our group was entertained by "Dan's" full magic show. The range of tricks and interaction still get's feedback from the staff on how it turned a night out for dinner into an event!

If you are looking for peace of mind, value for money and flexibility within your format, look no further. But please don't tell too many people as Dan is hard enough to book now given his reputation.

Happy to discuss by phone at any time.

Cheers,
